

The Exhibition

In this piece, Allusha Inkooti has recreated the pattern of the curtains that hung in her childhood bedroom. She remembers watching them swing in the breeze for hours, a motion that she says inspires her art.

The Wellman Gallery

2406 Urban Avenue
St. Louis, MO 63144

With a grant from the Joan T. Elliott Advancing Artists Foundation, The Wellman Gallery presents the work of 30 local artists, including Clay Gallagher, Nicole Weston, Fern Jackson, Bryce Troost, Allusha Inkooti, and Shakia Enato.

Built on the theme Memory Creates Vision, each artist has crafted pieces reflecting visceral experiences that have contributed to the formation of his/her individual aesthetic.

What happens when a childhood memory takes form as a drawing, painting or sculpture?

This interdisciplinary exhibit explores the intensity of thought within a diverse population and how singular moments can form lasting impressions.

Using all of their senses to create these pieces, the artists share a unique intimacy with their audience, a bond which cannot be experienced in any other situation.
